President’s Perspective
By Francine Pegues, MWGA President

“It was the best golf outing I’ve ever attended”, stated long time golf writer Jack Berry referring to the MWGA Legacy Celebration, Monday, May 19 at Travis Pointe Country Club. Jack wrote a lengthy article which appeared in the Michigan Golfer Magazine where he praised our recognition of Shirley Spork, Mary Fossum and Betty Richart.

This is the sentiment your MWGA members who participated continue to hear about our well attended golf outing and dinner. We had 136 golfers plus 54 dinner guest who came to recognize the incredible contributions to golf made by these incredible women. These women are not just role models for women, but for everyone who cares about the game of golf. They have demonstrated their passion for the sport by playing the games (together they are in seven athletic or golf Halls of Fame!), teaching other professionals how to teach, coaching and mentoring young people, volunteering so competitive tournaments could be played fairly and correctly by many. If only half of us did half as much to demonstrate our love for the game, just imagine how much stronger golf and women’s golf would be today.

Because of our financial success with this event we will be able to make significant contributions to the charities designated by the three honorees, Eastern Michigan University’s Women’s Golf Team, Michigan State University Women’s Golf Team and University of Michigan Women’s Golf Team. Additionally, a contribution will be made to the University of Detroit Mercy’s Women’s Golf Team whose members hit tee shots for the foursomes as did the other women’s golf teams. And in the end our Girls Golf Program has been funded for this year.

My heartfelt thanks to everyone who made this inaugural event a day to remember. I can say it exceeded our expectations! Be sure to see the Greg Johnson article and photo on your website.

Warmest regards,

Francine Pegues

Julia Baldwin to be honored

By Francine Pegues, President

Former MWGA Girls Golf Instructor,

Julia Baldwin, to be honored

The Tee Set Golf Club (TSGC) will honor Ms. Julia Baldwin, the teaching pro for MWGA’s Girls Golf Program from 2008 – 2010, during the golf club’s 35th Anniversary & Memorial Golf Tournament on Saturday, July 12, 2014, at the Links of Novi Golf Club.

“Julia Baldwin pulled double duty for us when we first expanded our Girls Golf Program to 2 sites. She taught the beginners at Rouge Park on Wednesdays and worked with the experienced junior golfers at Chandler Park on Friday’s” explained MWGA President, Francine Pegues. “She was committed to excellence and many of our junior golfers still inquire about her each season”, Pegues said.

Geri Tigner, a MWGA member and the tournament director for the Tee Set’s 35th anniversary tournament explained “I’m especially excited that this year we will give special honor and recognition to the stellar achievements of a TSGC founding member, Ms. Julia Baldwin, who is one of the few female African-American LPGA teaching professionals in the U.S. Julia has been a private golf instructor, as well as the golf instructor for the Police Athletic League (PAL), the First TEE Program and the Michigan Women’s Golf Association Girls Golf Program over the years and most deserving of this tribute”.

The tournament is an individual stroke play tournament for women and men. For more information contact Geri Tigner at 313.399.7280 or www.teeset.org
MWGA –Skills Clinic

By Lu Stockton

Sandy Wagner, a well-known teaching pro for over 22 years, presented three different skills clinics on May 31, 2014 at Eagle Crest Golf Resort in Ypsilanti. Putting and chipping was the first clinic, which was filled with many pointers from reading putts to executing successful chips. The second clinic focused on the dreaded bunker shots and pitch-chip shots. Sandy’s technique for bunker shots was so easy to remember. Then we went on to the third clinic for long shots. Sandy worked with each of us individually and in the end, we left with drills so we can build better practice habits. Sandy also believes that “speaking through a positive voice can make us all better players.”
TWO-PERSON FOUR BALL
Sycamore Hills GC, June 7, 2014

By Deb Horning, Director of Competitions

We had the most beautiful warm spring day to play golf in Michigan. Except for the greens being in rough shape, one would never know we had a record setting snowfall this past winter. When we played our practice round two weeks prior to the competition, there were still blankets on some greens. The Course Set-up Committee had been monitoring this course condition for over a month. In the end, it was decided to play your ball as it lies as we all played the same conditions.

Pace of play was good for many as the course allowed us 4 hours 30 minutes. By allow I mean they only put enough open golfers in front of our group (the MWGA) so we could still finish in 4 ¾ hours. My particular group waited the whole back nine and still played in 4 hours 20 minutes. Anyway, on a shotgun start, if everyone kept pace with the group they were following, we all should have finished in the course allotted time. Those of you that did not were either being held up by our own group or you were the group holding others up. Please be conscious of your position at all times.

Even though we’ve been putting on these competitions going on 28 years now, we’re still learning and trying to improve your golfing experience. That being said, it was unfortunate the only food that could be ordered was hot dogs. And in hindsight, a dinner vs. deli buffet was far more appropriate to eat at 7 pm. We have addressed this situation for next year.

Thank you to Max Adami, Matthew Schwark and the rest of the staff at Sycamore Hills. The rough greens didn’t slow us down too much as some nice scores were shot. Full field results can be found on the website at www.MWGOLF.org. Congratulations to all the winners.

The Positive Golfer
By Janina Parrott Jacobs, MWGA Advisor

You are likely still basking in the glow of the MWGA’s recent Legacy Lifetime Achievement Awards celebration on May 19 at Travis Pointe…… if not, you probably weren’t there! Everyone who attended had a great time playing golf, catching up on old friendships, and supporting not only our honorees, Shirley Spork, Betty Richart, and Mary Fossum, but also the organizations which will benefit from the funds generated: the EMU, MSU, U of M, and U of D Mercy women’s golf teams, as well as our own Girls Golf Program. The amount we made is still being tabulated, but thanks to all of you, women’s golf in Michigan is alive and well.

As you know, golf numbers have been sliding in recent years, but I still believe that the women’s market will help to turn this around in a major way. The 200+ attendees and supporters of the Legacy made that quite clear when they chose to participate. Every major golf organization was represented, which illustrates how important women’s golf is to Michigan and to the country. We must continue to support the growth of golf by encouraging our female friends and relatives to play this great game…. and to urge the industry to adopt more female friendly practices. Don’t forget some age-old wisdom: if you don’t ask, you don’t get. Quite often the things we want aren’t achieved because those who can grant the requests are simply unaware of the need. Make them aware, and we’ll all win.

As a result of my presentation on women’s golf to the Michigan Golf Course Owners Association’s Convention last December, the article in the May issue of GAM’s Michigan Links, ‘Girls are Good for Golf: Time for Industry to Embrace Women’ was commissioned. Asst. Executive Director Tonia Laird asked me to put my talk into words….though many less words, with a 1000-word limit! Since then, I’ve been asked to take this message to several other venues and the momentum is picking up, including interest by the PGA and others in the industry – a very important step in bringing women’s golf to the forefront instead of as an afterthought. Yesterday, I was playing golf at a major private club in the metro area which had revamped the Forward Tees a few years back. This year, more renovations are planned, but the talk of the day was one particular tee that was supposed to be designed strategically for women. Instead, the tee complex was changed to a less advantageous location simply because ‘it didn’t look nice from the back men’s tee’. That’s a quote. And the industry wonders why women leave the game.

Here’s a fun event you can attend in July at one of your favorite haunts….with special pricing for MWGA members/guests for lodging and the event:

GOLF & GAB, July 22 and 23 at Gull Lake View in Augusta. On the 22nd, at 6:30pm, fun instruction for all skill levels, appetizers, and spirits on select tee sites on the East Course will be offered. Afterwards, participants will head into the club house for a trunk show, more food and giveaways, as well as a short golf presentation by yours truly. On July 23rd, a Ladies’ 2-person HDCP scramble will begin at 9am at Stonehedge South. The July 22nd event is free to everyone; the 2-person scramble cost is $27.00 for Members and $39.00 for Non-Members. MWGA members and guests are being offered Member pricing PLUS $40 per person in a villa for overnight lodging.
Call in reservations at 855-900-1734 or 269-366-3404 to sign up.
Another MWGA golfing season is finally here. Our Course Coordinator, Nancy Serra, has put together a nice venue for 2014 with several courses which are new to our competition schedule. She has also scheduled to have a buffet available at each course for a price between $12 and $16. When you come in hungry after golf, no need to wait for an order.

Hickory Creek is one of the new courses to the schedule. It’s a nice track that’s not too difficult to navigate. Sixty of us put on our hats and cart covers to enjoy the day with friends, albeit a bit cold and windy. You gals are such troopers as nary a word was said about the weather. We enjoyed the buffet afterwards too!

For many, it was their first time out this year since the weather has been so bad. Nevertheless, all had a good time and some nice team scores were shot. Two non-members, Dinh Hong and Laura Kurcz, took no time enjoying and winning with the MWGA. Congratulations to them and all the winners.

IT WAS CELEBRATION TIME FOR GOLF’S 3 SPECIAL LADIES: By Jack Berry

Woman Power is an awesome thing to watch. I’ve never seen a better golf party than the Michigan Women’s Golf Association’s Legacy Celebration that honored Shirley Spork, Betty Richart and Mary Fossum for their lifetime achievements.

The MWGA couldn’t have picked better honorees.

Fossum was the longtime women’s golf coach at Michigan State and four of her students, Joan Garety, Sue Ertl, Joyce Kazmierski and Bonnie Lauer are in the Michigan Golf Hall of Fame with a fifth, Becky Iverson, going in next month. Fossum’s teams won five straight Big Ten titles and in pre-NCAA years, six straight AIAW championships. She is in the Golf Coaches Hall of Fame, her home state Wisconsin Golf Hall of Fame and the Michigan State University Athletics Hall of Fame.

Richart was chairwoman of the United States Golf Association’s Women’s Committee and was instrumental in bringing the U.S. Women’s Open to Indianwood and the Women’s Amateur to Barton Hills where she is a member. Richart grew up on a golf course her father built in 1928 in New Jersey. It was designed by William Flynn who had a hand in Merion, Shinnecock Hills and Cherry Hills in Denver, all U.S. Open sites, plus Pine Valley, just down the road from the Richart’s Woodcrest CC. Richart, just a kid then, wasn’t fond of the game because her father made her and her brothers pull weeds and swamp grass. When her father passed on neither Richart nor her brothers wanted the course. She said wryly that it recently went to auction and sold for $10.1 million.

Native Detroiter Spork not only was co-founder of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, she also founded the LPGA’s Teachers Division. Spork won the 1949 Michigan Amateur and won three straight Women’s District Match Play championships before moving on to the national scene with a victory in Chicagoan George S. May’s Tam O’Shanter All American Amateur.

The Legacy party almost overwhelmed the women who produced it. “It’s so much bigger than we expected,” a very pleased MWGA president Francine Pegues said of the day that drew 120 women and men to play golf and 200 for dinner at Travis Pointe CC in Ann Arbor.

MWGA members sold 14 major sponsorships plus hole sponsorships and 84 donors from all facets of golf. There was a slick 32 page program and a silent auction of equipment, golf rounds and dinners. A financial contribution was made to the golf programs selected by the honorees, MSU for Fossum, Michigan for Richart and Eastern Michigan for Spork.

Members of the women’s golf teams at University of Detroit Mercy, Michigan State, Michigan and Eastern Michigan were stationed at the par 5s and two long par 4s for a welcome touch – they hit drives for each foursome on the par 5s and second shots on the long par 4s.

Continued ..
Spork, who learned her short game when her family lived next to Bonnie Brook (the first club she bought when she was 13 was a putter), stationed herself at the 18th green. She gave chipping and putting tips to each group. At the dinner she told how she became a professional.

“I played in tournaments as an amateur. Then Babe Zaharias came along. Everyone wanted to see her and she wanted more women to play (to fill out a field). At the Western Open in Chicago Babe asked me if I was a professional. I told her I didn’t know how to become a professional. She tapped me on the head and said ‘I pronounce you a professional.’”

That was in 1950 and Spork, along with Zaharias, Patty Berg, Louise Suggs and nine other women formed the LPGA.

Spork eventually gave up the car trips of the playing circuit to teach golf, first at Bowling Green State University and eventually in the Palm Springs area where her students included Kirk Douglas, Dean Martin and Danny Kaye. She credited her teaching technique to skills she learned at Eastern Michigan University, then known as Michigan State Normal College, the teachers college.

Teaching is one of the goals of the MWGA. In 2007 the members decided to “grow the game” by offering lessons to girls from age 6 and up. Last year there were 45 youngsters at Rouge Park Golf Course and 12 to 16 more experienced girls at Chandler Park. Debbie Williams-Hoak, an LPGA Teaching Pro and PGA member Craig Piscopink work on golf instruction and a MWGA member goes with each group on the course, teaching golf etiquette and the rules.

The idea for the Legacy Celebration grew out of the organization’s fund-raising St. Patrick’s Euchre Party that included a potluck dinner, a mulligan auction and cards.

“Susan Bairley said we should have a dinner and honor these three women who had done so much for women’s golf, Pegues said. “From that, it just took off.”

Pegues, Bairley, Janina Jacobs, Sara Wold, Barbara Coury, Barbara Porter, Nancy Serra, Pat Shelton and Sandy Wagner were on the planning committee and 30 names were on the At-Large Committee. Basically, the ladies didn’t take No for an answer and as the function grew it surprised them.

Next year? The theme may be junior golf. In two years the MWGA will celebrate its 30th year and they do know how to throw a party. It will be Celebrate Good Times, Come On!
